

THE ROYAL PROCESSION

Note: The transactional processes suggested in CISCE curriculum are highlighted in grey.

Learning Outcomes

- To note how a chance encounter turns out to be royal one
- To relate to the children's excitement
- To learn what a Vihara is
- To analyse the character of King Ashoka

Pre-reading

This focusses on assessment for learning. Students are introduced to what pottery is about with the help of the image and the related questions.

This will help students understand that pottery is a profession and that the children were helping their father to deliver the earthen goods at the Vihara.

Ask students:

Have you seen a potter? What does a potter make? Allow free response and after students' responses, proceed to explain that a potter makes bowls, plates, pots etc with clay.

READING

Students read to comprehend and analyse and deduce

Play the audio / Read the text and pause at relevant points to explain / check comprehension.

- It was early in the morning...very interesting there.

Generate a discussion on where people go to pray. Allow students to share where they or their folks go to pray.

Explain what a Vihara is.

Ask students:

What did the children carry? Who did they meet in the kitchen? What did the monk tell them? Why did he have a mysterious smile on his face? (Because he knew the children were going to get a huge surprise)

Who do you think they will meet? (Let students predict)

- In the temple hall...opened his yes.

Do you think the man in the prayer hall is a monk? Give reasons for your answer.
(Suggested answer, please accept any logical answer: No, the man in the prayer hall is not a monk because he was wearing gold jewellery.)

The question will lead the students into the thought that monks dress in simple attires and do not wear jewellery; hence the person could be a royal

Ask students:

What did they see in the temple hall? Who did they see praying in the hall? Who do you think he is? (Students are bound to say king/ some royal person / a general...) Why do you think so?

- Oh! I'm so sorry, sir...walked away smiling.

Do you think Parvati guessed correctly that the retired soldier was the important person the monk had told them about? (Free response.)

Why did Parvati apologise? How did the man respond? What kind of a person do you think he is? Why do you think so? (Let students state their reasons — was friendly, did not get upset at all; joked with the children; was talking to them about things they would be interested in)

Who do you think he is? (Students are sure to say 'King Ashoka') Why do you think so? What made you guess that he was King Ashoka? (The man wore gold jewellery; he said he worked in the palace; he said he was a soldier once and not anymore; he said the king was not handsome which no one else would dare say)

- A few days later...said Kesava, enviously.

Talk to the class about:

- the king's bodyguards and the need to have them.

- the grandeur of the procession.
- Parvati and Laxman's surprise.
- the king's acknowledgement
- the children's excitement

Why do you think King Ashoka had come to pray alone at the vihara, a few days ago?

(Suggested answer, please accept any logical answer: King Ashoka had come alone to the vihara a few days ago so he could pray alone without any disturbance.)

Post-reading

Group-work

Let students discuss in groups and describe King Ashoka's nature with examples from the text.

GRAMMAR

Prepositions of Place

Tell students that you are going to give them some fun instructions to follow.

Customise the instructions and questions, taking into consideration your classroom arrangement.

You may use some of these instructions:

Put your left foot under the desk. / Put your English book in your bag. / Put your right hand on your head.

Ask students:

Where did you put your left foot? Where did you put your English book? Where did you put your right hand?

When they provide the answers, write only the phrases on the board: under the desk / in the bag / on my head, and so on.

Ask students to identify the things in each phrase and the word which talks about their positions.

Circle all the prepositions on the board and write Prepositions of place on top.

You can also show pictures of an object in different places and ask students to say where it is. Example: a ball in the box...

Tell students:

In, on, under, above, behind and between are prepositions of place.

A preposition of place tells us where a person, an animal, a place or a thing is.

Prepositions of Time

Conduct a question and answer session with the following questions and let students answer you.

Prepositions—place, time, direction

Write a few sentences with the prepositions of time on the board. Underline the prepositions and explain that they answer the question when.

Example:

When do you have your breakfast?

I have my breakfast in the morning. / at eight o'clock.

Prepositions of Direction

Explain that prepositions of direction

- show us the direction in which something is moving.
- answer the question 'which direction'.

Example:

The athletes ran towards the finish line.

The boat sailed against the tide.

They climbed up the ladder.

Activity

Tell students you are going to play Classroom Treasure Hunt.

Divide the class into two groups.

Instruct Team 1 to create a treasure hunt map within the class for Team 2.

Tell them to write 5 clues using prepositions of direction. Write a few prepositions of direction on the board.

Allow them to hide the clues in different places in the class.

Example of clues:

Walk towards the blackboard.

Along the wall, you will find a clue.

Walk through the third row and below a chair you will find your fifth clue...and so on.

Instruct them to hand over the clues to Team 2 and cheer them as they solve the clues.

Repeat the activity with Team 2.

VOCABULARY

Idiomatic expressions

Follow the input given in the Reader

LISTENING

Post-listening

The listening task helps students stay focussed and develops concentration skills.

Tell students

- that they will be listening to a conversation between two people.
- to listen carefully and then underline the correct answers.

Play the audio track and let students do the task.

Review the answers.

SPEAKINGDiscussion

Explain to the class that a hobby is an activity that is done for enjoyment, typically during one's leisure time.

Generate a discussion on what students like to do in their spare time.

Proceed with the speaking task after students have warmed up to the concept.

Encourage students to communicate using appropriate expressions and intonation.

Monitor the activity.

WRITINGemail

Explain to students that emails are either formal or informal (just like letters that we send by post).

Point out that while writing emails, we follow a few simple rules:

- Use a short and accurate subject line: Avoid saying too much in this section, but make sure it refers to the content clearly, (Surprise party for Ms Kaur) so that it is not mistaken for anything else.
- Salutation: Begin an informal email with 'Dear', 'Hi', 'Hello', and so on.
- Next, type in the mail. Be sure to get your message across. Make sure you type in paragraphs. Insert space between paragraphs.
- Use the correct form of leave-taking. This will depend on your relationship with the recipient. (Warmly, With love, Regards, and so on)
- Sign off with your name.
- Read your mail to check for errors. Make sure that you have not omitted any important details.
- Do not type the date or your email address as this is displayed by default.

Comprehension

- A. 1. Parvati and Laxman had come to the monastery to deliver the earthen pots, plates, bowls and glasses made by their father.

2. The temple hall was decorated by delicate carved designs on the wooden pillars and splendid pictures painted on the walls.
 3. The children saw a man praying before the shrine in the temple hall. He was wearing an antariya, an uttariya and gold jewellery on his neck, ears and arms.
 4. Laxman felt that the man in the temple hall was a lucky person because he worked in the palace of King Ashoka and saw him every day. He and Parvati had lived in Pataliputra all their lives but had never seen him.
 5. The royal procession was led by soldiers carrying shining spears. They were followed by horse chariots, a band of women soldiers carrying big swords, a row of drummers playing a marching beat and a huge elephant. The elephant had a howdah on its back and colourful patterns painted on its trunk and ears. King Ashoka, Queen Mahadevi, a mahout and a man holding an umbrella sat in the howdah.
 6. Parvati and Laxman were surprised when they saw the king's face because they recognised him as the man they had met at the vihara of the monastery.
 7. The king noticed Parvati and Laxman among the crowd because they began jumping and shouting in excitement after recognising him.
- B.
1. a. The speaker is the man who was praying in the vihara of the monastery.
He was speaking to Parvati and Laxman.
 - b. The speaker asked this question because Laxman told him that his and Parvati's father was a potter.
 - c. Parvati and Laxman told the speaker that they tried to work the potter's wheel but their pots came out all crooked.

 - c. The speaker painted flowers, clouds, leaves and birds on the pots.
3. a. The speaker is Parvati. She is speaking to the man praying in the vihara of the monastery.
 - b. The speaker, Parvati, asked this question because a monk in the monastery had told her and Laxman that they might meet an interesting person if they went to the vihara.
 - c. The man in the vihara told the speaker, Parvati, that he didn't think he was an important person. He said that he was only a retired soldier who worked in the palace.
- C. (Suggested answer, please accept any logical answer):

King Ashoka was humble.

These lines from the text show that King Ashoka was humble—

"She asked, 'Are you an important person, sir?'

The man laughed, 'I don't think so. I'm just a retired soldier who works in the palace.'"
